SUBLIMATION

Sublimation is the best choice for team uniforms and custom sports apparel. Many people ask “What is sublimation printing and why choose to sublimate vs screen print”? Sublimation is the process of transferring dye to a fabric using heat. The image is printed on special paper placed on the garment and heat is applied, allowing the ink to become part of the fabric. This will leave you with a more breathable, soft-hand feel to the fabric. The best part is that the numbers, letters and graphics do not wear off! Few benefits of sublimation printing are described below.

1) They never go out of style. Because sublimated jerseys are custom made, there is no need to worry about your uniform being discontinued next season. If you opt for a sublimated design for your team, the manufacturer holds onto that design just for you in case you ever need a replacement or reorder.

2) Sublimated jerseys don't Sublimation peel, crack, or fade. Since the sublimation process dyes the ink directly into material, it's much more resistant to damage over time. They can survive the ravages that banging in the post, sliding into home, and angry washing machines wreak on uniforms over time.

3) Colors really pop. Traditional uniforms are already dyed a certain color before designs are added. With sublimation, the designs are the first thing dyed into the fabric, allowing for more vibrant and detailed designs and images. As you can see in the image of the Lakers logo above, the sublimated on the left pops more than the screen print on the right.

EMBROIDERY

Machine embroidery is a process whereby a sewing machine or embroidery machine is used to create patterns on textiles. It is used commercially in product branding, corporate advertising, and uniform adornment. It is also used in the fashion industry to decorate garments and apparel.

Embroidery machines are computer controlled and specifically engineered for embroidery and combination sewing-embroidery machines have a hooping or framing system that holds the framed area of fabric taut under the sewing needle and moves it automatically to create a design from a pre-programmed digital embroidery pattern.

These machines require the user to input the correct color change sequence before beginning to embroider. Some can trim and change colors automatically.

SCREEN PRINTING

Screen Printing, is a method of printing graphics on a t-shirt using thick inks that lay on top of the shirt rather than soaking into the shirt. With thicker inks, screen printing is better for graphics with only one or two ink colors being used. Rather than DTG the screen printing will make these colors pop out at you like jack in the box. The thick ink will have a soft feeling if touched and can make for a really amazing look.

So how does Screen Printing work? A thin mesh is stretched tightly over a frame (originally the screen was made from silk, however, mostly made from polyester). A negative of the design is printed onto the screen to be placed against the shirt. Once set correctly, ink is rolled over the screen, only the areas where the design has been printed allows ink to slip through. The ink then sets on the T-shirt and is put aside to dry. Moreover, screen printing works very well with both light and dark T-shirts.

FABRICS

Interlock

The interlock fabric is a double layer knitted fabric type obtained by placing the cylinders and the cover needles perpendicularly and reciprocally on each other in double knitted circular knitting machines.

Lycra

LYCRA is a highly elastic synthetic fabric. Despite having different names, Lycra, spandex, and elastance are all the same material, and these fabrics can stretch to 5-8 times their usual size.

Speedo

Speedo ECO Fabric is made from reclaimed & recycled water bottles. The yarn is knitted into soft & durable Speedo ECO Fabric.

Fleece

Fleece is a man-made wonder product, if there is such a thing. Despite being named after the 'fleece' coat on a sheep, it's 100% synthetic and derived from plastic rather than a fluffy sheep's coat despite being fuzzy to the touch. The super soft, warm and breathable nature of this magic material makes it perfect for outerwear and all things cosy.

Micro Mesh

Polyester Micro Mesh. Our 2.5 oz. Polyester Micro Mesh is commonly used in athletics due to the strength and durability of the material.

100% Cotton

100% cotton is a fully breathable fabric, which means that it can be cooler to wear in hot conditions. Cotton canvas is a very durable and abrasion-resistant fabric.

Terry Fleece

Terry fleece are single knit fabrics, which mean they consist of a single yarn that is knitted together with loops. These fabrics typically have more stretch than double knits or single knits.

Soft Shell

Softshell Fabrics. Softshell fabric has a stiff drape and is robust. This fabric is also water-repellent and insulating.

Honeycomb

Waffle fabric, also known as Honeycomb fabric, has raised threads that form small rectangles. It can be made by either weaving or knitting. The weave consists of warp and weft floats arranged around a plain weave center.

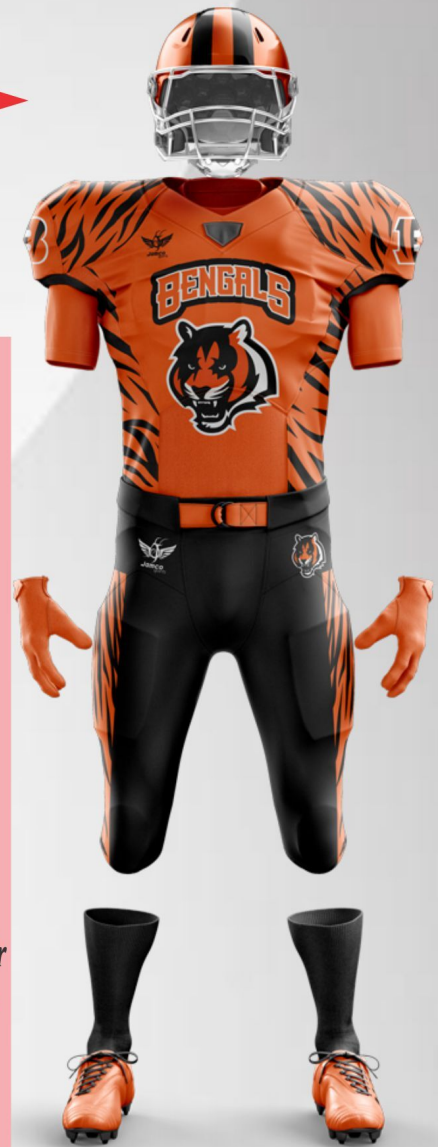

AMERICAN FOOTBALL UNIFORM

Jamco Sports is counted in the list of appreciable American Football Uniforms Manufacturers, Suppliers and Exporters from Pakistan. Our complete range consists of standard as well as customized designs. We are offering our collection in all standard sizes.

Our range is known for two things – customization & sublimation. It is the desire of every team to look great on during the on and off the field. In order to cater to their requirements, we are offering collection with amazing features like the team name, the player name, logo, etc. For these designs, you should have the option to provide us the specifications. The sublimation is basically the digital printing technique which helps in offering high definition prints. This technology enables us to offer computer aided designs directly on the fabric. Moreover, these designs have the ability to withstand tough playing conditions.

Nowadays, the teams are looking for brilliant quality custom designs. We understand their requirements and are capable of creating collections as per your needs. All you need is to provide us the specifications related to design and fabric. Our competent designers will create collection accordingly.
